DEPARTED.
Saturday, March 8.
Stmr. Helene, for Puna, Mahukona, Honolulu, Paauhau, Kakaia, Oukala, Laupahoehoe and Papeete.
Stmr. Nihau, Thompson, from Kakaia, with 5080 bags of sugar.

NIHAU FROM KAUAI

The steamer Nihau arrived from Kauai "early" at an early hour, this morning, after having been long delayed on account of the fierce northeast storm which raged for almost a week and which now has given place to peace on the bosom of the ocean. She brought 5080 bags of sugar.

The Nihau's story of the storm on Kauai would indicate that the Garden Isle stood just a little more wind than Oahu.

At Hanalei the wind was terrific and it was impossible to handle freight or do much else except look out for the vessel.

The Ke Au Hou and Kauai, expected to arrive from Kauai tomorrow morning, have also had great difficulty in accomplishing anything at Kauai ports.

The Nihau reports the arrival of the ship E. P. Whitney at Makaweli from Honolulu on Thursday.

LIFE OF GERMS IN DUST.

Gaffey found that microbes retain their vitality much longer in dust, than in sunny rooms. This may be one reason why disease germs flourish better in winter than in summer, owing to the lesser hours of sunlight. He points out that influenza epidemics have never occurred in Germany, except when the weather has been long cloudy. The vitality is also directly proportional to the size of the particle of dust or moisture. The germ dies more rapidly the finer the particles. In his tests with droplets, such as are expelled in speaking, sneezing or coughing, he found that the bacillus prodigiosus and the typhoid bacillus retained their vitality 24 hours in daylight; the diphtheria bacillus 24 to 48 hours in daylight and 5 days in a cellar; the tubercle bacillus 5 days in daylight and 22 days in a cellar; the fowl cholera bacillus 10 hours in daylight and 24 hours in the cellar; the staphylococcus pyogenes aureus 8 to 10 days in daylight and 35 days in the cellar; one streptococcus longus 10 days in daylight and 38 days in the cellar, and anthrax spores 10 weeks in daylight, and at least three months in the cellar.

The Banker and Investor says that more than 600 oil companies now selling stock will go out of business in 1902.

"Yes, it's a very valuable property now, but a few years ago I could have had it for a mere song." "And you couldn't sing, eh?" "Oh, I could sing, but I couldn't get the right notes."

A HONOLULU PAPER FOR THE HONOLULU PEOPLE

THE SUNDAY BULLETIN

All up-to-date merchants advertise. People understand this and realize that if their wants cannot be supplied by advertisers there is no use searching in the stores of non-advertisers.

The Sunday Bulletin presents a great and important field for investment to merchants. Has the largest circulation of any island newspaper and ads. are given special attention.

Tomorrow's issue will be so well worth the cost that it is to your interest as well as our own to call attention to it in every way. It will be full of good stories and strong, able, authoritative articles on important subjects, interesting to every member of the family.

Some of the Special Features:

Mele, or Chant, of Kualii
Being a translation of an old Hawaiian chant, in which a history of one of the highest chiefs is detailed.

Shall Girls Ride Astride
Of special interest to island young ladies.

Trapping a Witness
An exceedingly interesting short story by one of the legal profession.

President Palma's Plans for Cuba

Drippy Williams' Sentence Reversed
